About Atomic Systems, Inc.

We strongly believe in the old adage, 'A picture is worth a thousand words'. Atomic Systems takes that one step further in providing your organization with a product that will produce positive impressions for all who visit your site, while giving visitors the resources and information they need.

The "Atomic Advantage"

We will engineer and implement a great site / system for a better price! We specialize in strategic site design, planning and all forms of web development. No matter what the technical need may be, Atomic Systems will ensure a cost effective solution in a world class setting. Our design work is geared toward making a powerful impression in simplicity. The systems we build are custom made to fit the needs of the client. Because of our partnerships and experience in the industry, we are able to keep costs low while still producing an exceptional product.

Our Process

To ensure customer satisfaction with the web design process / site architecture, Atomic Systems has incorporated a 4 step process:

Planning the project:

First we meet with the client to discuss the purpose as well as the architecture and layout for the site. We get as much information as possible from the client to fully understand their expectations.

Site Design:

We design the interface and user details. We illustrate to the client how the project will look and feel. We gain feedback from the client on who will be using the site, and how those users will be using it. The last phase within site design requires the client to buy off on the design, back-end processing, and graphic work.

Construction:

After the client signs off on the project, we begin construction. Changes or additions at this point will require the client to sign off on the redesign and accompany a change fee.

Deployment:
We upload the site and handle all technical issues at that time. We promote the site to the main search engines and related sites. We also email the client an electronic zipped copy of the site. A client who wishes to have CD burned with their site may request this at the time of purchase, and must provide a CD to Atomic Systems.
